

Unrequited

Mason has a past. Having fled his home he now lives out a lonely, isolated existence, doing his best to remain invisible, while watching the world pass him by with an increasingly cynical detachment. At least until a remarkable young woman captivates his attention. Shayla has a future. With a career, good friends and a fiance she adores, she loves her life and really wants for nothing. But for some time now something has been watching her, drawn to something about her that makes her unique. When Mason's world violently collides with Shayla's, his past threatens to destroy her future. To set things right Mason must come to terms with and atone for what he had done while Shayla must find an inner strength she never knew existed within her. And the only thing either of them can rely on is each other.
