Gavin Knight ventures out one evening for a snack and is attacked by a winged succubus. He believes it was a hallucination, until a friend is killed in a way that makes it all too real. Armed with the mystery of his dying words, he attempts to unmask the killer before suffering the same fate. Enter John Sheridan, the lead investigator in the case, who he doesn't trust for a minute despite his occupation. Jack and his crew, who have a peculiar occupation and feed him an explanation of what is happening that sounds off the deep end. The B&B boys, who would like nothing more than to settle an old score and find out what he is hiding. Desdemona, who has her own ideas on who Gavin really is and determined that he fall in line. If that isn't enough, old man Wallace shares something about his hallucination that catapults his mind among the stars. As the pieces of who is really behind his friend's murder come together, he finds himself with no way out, between a rock and a hot place in hell.
