

Writings/Interviews

One of the most important sculptors of this century, Richard Serra has been a spokesman on the nature and status of art in our day. Best known for site-specific works in steel, Serra has much to say about the relation of sculpture to place, whether urban, natural, or architectural, and about the nature of art itself, whether political, decorative, or personal. In interviews with writers including Douglas and Davis Sylvester, he discusses specific installations and offers insights into his approach to the problem each presents. Interviews by Peter Eisenman and Alan Colquhoun elicit Serras thoughts on the relation of architecture to contemporary sculpture, a primary component in his own work. From essays like Extended Notes from Sight Point Road to Serras extended commentary on the Tilted Arc fiasco, the pieces in this volume comprise a document of one artists engagement with the practical, philosophical, and political problems of art.
