

Meanings of Music (Classic Reprint)

Five of the following papers were given as Talks before the Womans Literary Club of Baltimore. The paper on the Musical Affinities of Italian Verse, which under ordinary circumstances would not be offered to the general public, was especially enjoyed by this Club, nearly all of whose members have been to Italy and have some familiarity with the Italian language. It stands therefore as a memorial of the culture of my audience as well as of my work for the Club. One of the papers I took with me to Europe, and had it criticized by a pupil of Leschetizky. It is on the ground of this double encouragement that I now present the collection to music-lovers, students and educators, trusting that the time may come when our Government will make an appropriation for Music Schools throughout the length and breadth of the land, so that, where there are now three or four there may be thousands upon thousands who can study and enjoy the glorious compositions which wing the thoughts and elevate the soul.
