Perceptions of Mental Health Problems: Islamic context

Revision with unchanged content. The book examines how mental health problems are perceived in two primary Islamic texts: the Quran (the holy book for Muslims) and the Hadith (the sayings and traditions of Prophet Muhammad). These analysis are integrated with the perceptions of a cohort of Jordanian Muslims about their mental health problems and treatment. Two important theoretical frameworks underpin this research, namely the post-colonial theorizing of scholars such as Edward Said, Franz Fanon, and Homi Bhabha, and the Explanatory Model of Arthur Kleinman. Quran and the Hadith emphasise that the conception of Allahs will is central in the Muslims relationship with God, and in their interpretation of the causality of mental health problems, and the journey to seeking help. The book identifies that religion and religious belief are absolutely central to the way that this cohort of Muslim participants interpret the cause and development of their mental health problems and, further, it posits that this is due in part to the explanations of causation and coping contained in primary Muslim texts. This book is an important source for; health professionals, psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers, nurses, community workers, sociologists, anthropologists and teachers who are working with individuals from Muslim backgrounds in different health and community settings.

[PDF] Talks to Teachers on Psychology and to Students on Some of Lifes Ideals (Dodo Press)
[PDF] Dr. Montessoris Own Handbook (Classic Reprint)
[PDF] Vigilante, The, Edition# 50
[PDF] Pediatric Critical Care, 2e
[PDF] Two On Tour Book 1
[PDF] Famous & Fun Christmas, Bk 3 (Famous & Fun) (Paperback) - Common
[PDF] The Hands of Shang-chi, Master of Kung Fu #27 (Trapped . . . In the Lair of Fu Manchu!)

Mental Illness Perceptions in the Somali Community in - Ohio The questionnaire encompassed 37 questions relating to the context in which the GPs practised, perceptions of mental illness, understanding of religion and Perceptions of mental illness among Muslim general practitioners in experience of mental illness and mental health services are linked to their sociocultural context. (symptomology, perceived cause, impact), and recovery (traditional healing, family From this review, it is clear that the sociocultural context in the region is linked to practice any religion other than Islam, and women are. Islamic Counselling: An Introduction to Theory and Practice - Google Books Result Exploring the role of Islam in perceptions of mental illness in a The replicability of the FFM of personality in a SA context. Within this project Perceptions of mental illness among Muslim general practitioners in South Africa. Mental illness research in the Gulf Cooperation Council: a scoping Mental illness stigma continues to be a major barrier for individuals with . that African Americans and Asians perceived people with mental illness as more . Consideration of intersectional stigma in the context of Muslim mental health is also Religion and mental health - NCBI - NIH current state of understanding mental illness stigma in Islam, and summarize . found that African Americans and Asians perceived people with mental ill- ness as . There are contextual differences among practices and beliefs about health. Perceptions of mental illness among Muslim general - SciELO SA The questionnaire encompassed 37 questions relating to the context in which the GPs practised, perceptions of mental illness, understanding An exploration of South African Muslim general - WIReDSpace Perceptions that marriage was related to psychiatric disorder .. content of symptoms in this review are clearly shaped by the Islamic context. Mental Health Stigma in the Muslim Community - University of History and current context of mental health services in Iran After the Islamic revolution in 1979, the Teheran Psychiatric Institute was type of symptoms exhibited,[11] severity of the health problem,[12] etc. In order to describe the participants perceptions and experiences of the clients readiness to use mental health Muslim Leaders Understandings of Mental Health, Mental Illness Attitudes and beliefs of lay individuals about mental illness are shaped by The cultural context is important when studying beliefs regarding mental health. .. But there are findings from Muslim Arab cultures with similar @wits.ac.za - Wits University Mental illness is often highly stigmatised, and Muslims may prefer private coping At its best, however, this literature provides necessary contextual frameworks for . Perceived threats of the enemy within contribute to the marginalisation of Beliefs and perception about mental health issues: a meta-synthesis The questionnaire encompassed 37 questions relating to the context in which the GPs practised, perceptions of mental illness, understanding of religion and Mental Health Stigma in the Muslim Community - University of Family Reunion. Culturally distant. traditional African. Islamic Their mental health problems are exacerbated due to. Social, economic The clients readiness to use mental health care services - NCBI - NIH perceptions of mental illness within Lenasia, a suburb of which entailed 37 questions related to the GPs context, GPs perceptions of mental illness,. South African Muslim Faith Healers Perceptions of Mental Illness Revision with unchanged content. The book examines how mental health problems are perceived in two primary Islamic texts: the Quran (the holy book for The State of Social Progress of Islamic Societies: Social, - Google Books Result Keywords: Religion, mental illness, spiritual illness, faith healers, Islamic medicine acknowledges this and states that the ethnic and cultural context of the Handbook of Arab American Psychology - Google Books Result Mental illness stigma continues to be a major barrier for individuals with . that African Americans and Asians perceived people with mental illness as more . Consideration of intersectional stigma in the context of Muslim mental health is also Perceptions of Mental Health Problems: Islamic context: Nada This paper explores beliefs among Muslim Americans about mental illness in and has changed over time depending upon the cultural and social contexts. . that mental illness is a disease, and can therefore be perceived in a way similar to Perceptions of Mental Health Problems: Islamic context: Nada Muslims understanding of mental health problems The Islamic perspective of mental Muslims have a broad range of beliefs about the cause of mental health problems. In a study about perceptions of mental illness, Abu-Ras and AbuBader to the way Muslims interpret the cause 54 Context and background Muslims Mental Health Help-Seeking Behaviors of Muslim Immigrants in the What factors have influenced your perceptions or views of this individual? This exercise requires an exploration of issues around our own ethnicity, mental health, Seventh Day Adventist dietary patterns, Five pillars of Islam or African healing. way in which occupational therapy the Context of oCCupatIonal therapy 260. An Exploratory Study of American Muslim Conceptions of Mental Muslim GPs, and to do this qualitatively to provide a richer descrip tion of their questions covering contextual issues, GPs perceptions of mental illness Occupational Therapy and Mental Health - Google Books Result The questionnaire encompassed 37 questions relating to the context in which the GPs practised, perceptions of mental illness, understanding of religion and Perceived Discrimination of Muslims in Health Care Perceptions of Mental Health Problems: Islamic context: Nada Eltaiba: : Libros. Perceptions of mental illness among Muslim general - WIReDSpace perceptions of mental illness among a group of Muslim psychiatrists in the Johannesburg . inequalities in the South African context, which make it difficult to. Mental Health Stigma in the Muslim Community - Felton Institute Muslim immigrants from the perspectives of local Muslim religious leaders and intervention to deal with mental health problems, the religious leaders .. symptoms, causes and treatments) within a particular culture in a specific context. . adopting new customs, learning new laws, and experiencing incidents of perceived. There are obvious differences between Jewish-Christian-Islamic religion and religious traditions Natural causes to mental disorders were proposed and largely accepted during that .. Avasthi A, Anthony R. Psychotherapy in Indian Context. Muslim patients and health disparities in the UK and the US Exploring the role of Islam in perceptions of mental illness in a sample of context, which make it difficult to ensure culture-matching for clients. Perceptions of mental illness among Muslim general - SciELO SA Given the emphasis on the varied ecological contexts in which an individual is Muslim American community (Ansary & Salloum, 2012). Arab American Perceptions of Traditional Mental Health Services Prior to salient cultural perceptions that are shared among many when mental illness and treatment are considered.