

TSN: The Sea of Grass

The Sea of Grass takes place in the same Terran Space Navy universe as my previous novels. This one though is approximately 600 years in the future of the events in TSN: Epiphany and TSN: The Best Laid Plans. David Fletcher, Explorer First Class, Terran Space Navy, has been contracted to explore a planet known as Bakers Dozen; on his way to that assignment the TSN vessel Tiger Lily was attacked and destroyed. Dave and his Cyberform companion Chet were in a Time Stasis shipping container. They and a basic Data Storage Library as well as their usual basic exploration package were ejected during the attack in the faint hope that they at least might survive. The world of the Sea of Grass is an unusual one, inhabited by the descendents of the survivors of ship wrecks, sinkings and a few abductees mostly over a period of time lasting approximately a century from the 1840s to the 1950s. There are of course some exceptions as it appears the unknown race that was doing these sort of rescues and abductions for close to a millennium prior to the period of maximum gathering. The technology of the world of the Sea of Grass is a mish-mash of low to mid tech level technology. When the people arrived on the world of the sea of grass they brought virtually nothing with them. Only a few books came along, most of the reference, history and technical books of the era didn't arrive. So what knowledge there remained was only in the brains of the survivors. And Humans being Humans eventually they will find something to squabble about.

So we now start the beginning of another series in the TSN Universe with the Sea of Grass. July 6, 2014 - Updated version with some editing and typos taken care of. August 25, 2014 - Updated with Teaser Chapters from TSN: Exploring the World
